Cigarette Tax Bill Signed in Texas By Governor Sterling

Levy of Three Cents Per Package to Become Law in Texas

BENEFIT TO SCHOOLS

New Duty to Be Put Into Effect 90 Days After Adjournment

AUSTIN—(AP)—The three cents a package cigarette tax huddled its last barrier Wednesday afternoon when Governor Sterling affixed his signature.

The tax will become operative 90 days after the legislature adjourns, probably about August 10. The levy will be made against the person making the first immediate sale, the wholesaler in most cases.

The bill was passed by the house Monday, 72 to 56, after it had been approved by the senate. It also proposed a two per cent gross production tax on natural gas.

Senator Berkeley of Alpine was the author of the cigarette tax. He was present to witness the bill's signing, as were Representatives Holder of Lancaster, Sanders of Neogoches and McDougald of Beaumont, leaders in the fight for its passage.

Proponents estimated the tax would bring in about $5,000,000 annually. The natural gas producers tax was estimated to raise around $6,000,000 a year.

First Tax Measure

This was the first revenue-raising measure enacted during the present session.

Holder said he did not think any others would be necessary to keep the ad valorem rate from being raised. However, a bill to tax natural gas distributors had been approved by the house and others were pending.

Texas had never tried a cigarette tax. The proposal had been offered every two years for some time and had always been killed. This year, the house rejected it three times.

The law's constitutionality was questioned because the senate added the cigarette levy as an amendment to the house gas tax. The constitution provides all revenue raising measures must originate in the house. James V. Allred, attorney general and others held, however, that the senate had the power to amend by adding a new tax.

Half of the cigarette tax returns will go to the schools and the remainder to the general revenue fund. The schools will get one-fourth of the gas tax and the general revenue three-fourths. Proponents said the taxes would enable the per capita school apportionment to be kept at $17.50.

Russian Lumber Cargo Is Received

Finnish Steamer Arrives With 400,000,000 Feet Thursday

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(AP)—A Finnish steamer, the Anversois, arrived off quarantine here Thursday morning, carrying 4,000,000 feet of lumber from the Soviet republic.

This cargo is expected to furnish a test case as to the validity of Russian lumber for import into this country.

The treasury department decreed an embargo against such imports February 10, unless the shippers can prove that the imports were not produced by convict labor.

Two Children Hurt as Shrapnel Shell Blasts

ALEXANDRIA—(AP)—Two children were injured, one seriously and a score of others were endangered when a "one pounder" shrapnel shell exploded in the basement of the Pineville grammar school Wednesday. The shell was accidentally dropped on the concrete floor by a youth, who thinking it a harmless trinket, had been carrying it about in his pockets.

Aba Smith, 10, and Milner Clark, 9, were struck in the legs by the flying shrapnel. A piece of the steel, more than an inch in length, was removed from the thigh of the Smith child. She was the more seriously injured of the two.

Farmer Robbed By Two Masked Thugs

George Laughlin Waylaid at Dawn and Forced to Give Up Savings

CORNING—Clay county officers Thursday had found no trace of two masked robbers, heavily armed, who held up George Laughlin, farmer at his home near Success at daybreak Wednesday, and got away with $631.

The robbers, apparently familiar with Laughlin's habits, hailed him at his front door a few minutes after he had arisen and forced him to re-enter the house and surrender the key to a tool chest in which he kept his money and valuable papers. One robber covered Laughlin with a pistol, while the other took the money from the chest. Members of Laughlin's family slept through the robbery.

One of the bandits appeared to be about 20 years old, the other about 25, both had blond hair.

Last Session of Cooking School at 1:30 P. M. Friday

Rada Sue Garrett Continues Record-Breaking Week Here

FRIDAY IS BIGGEST

Housewives Are Urged to Come Early for Seats on Final Day

The final session of The Star's third annual free Cooking School will open at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon in the Saenger theater.

Notwithstanding reported slow business in other lines the optimism of food merchandisers appears justified by the sensational increase in attendance at all sessions of the 1931 Cooking School, which day by day has run far ahead of the crowds at the 1930 School, which in turn was larger than the 1929 session.

An overcast sky with a threat of rain failed to hold down attendance Thursday, when Miss Rada Sue Garrett again addressed a crowd which reached back to the last row of the main floor of the Saenger.

The Star's expert talked Thursday on "Mother Hubbard's Cupboard," featuring 1931 model cakes, lemon and raisin turnovers, molasses pie, and many other delightful recipes.

Miss Garrett will close the five-day session Friday. Housewives of the city and Southwest Arkansas are urged to come early, for the final session invariably draws the largest crowd of the week, and seats on the main floor will be taken soon after the opening hour.

Admission is free, and The Star repeats its invitation to the housewives of the territory adjacent to Hope, which has come to look upon the newspaper's Cooking School as the premier indoor event of the year.

Stuffed Pigeons Will Be Used as Bird Traps

CHICAGO, (AP)—Stuffed barnyard pigeons, made to flutter in the breeze about 15 inches above the ground, will be used in the Ogemaw forest of northern Michigan this year as traps for predatory birds.

The idea was advanced by Blaine Brannon, keeper of the Ogemaw refuge above Bay City, Michigan, and endorsed by the conservation of the Isaac Walton League. It is the latest move in the fight against big horned owls and other predators which prey on valuable game and song birds.

An ordinary stuffed, barnyard pigeon, with its wings spread, is supported on a slim coil of wire. Brannon explained. A spring trap rests on the back and wings of the bird and is fastened to a stake in the ground with a connecting chain. Wind will cause the tethered bird to sway and tremble, catching the eye of the predator which swoops to seize the stuffed pigeon and is caught when its claws are thrust into the bird and open trap.

The Star's Platform

Apply the revenues of the municipal power plant to develop the industrial and social resources of Hope.
 More city pavement in 1931, and improved sanitary conditions in the alleys and business back-yards.
 Support the Chamber of Commerce.

COUNTY

A county highway program providing for the construction of a certain amount of all-weather road each year, to gradually reduce the dirt-road mileage.

Political and economic support for every scientific agricultural program which offers practical benefits to Hempstead county's greatest industry.

Encourage farmer organizations, believing that co-operative effort is as practical in the country as it is in town.

STATE

Continued progress on the state highway program.
 Fearless tax reform, and a more efficient government throughout the budget system of expenditures.
 Free Arkansas from the cattle tick.

Wishing Them All Success

THE STAR extends its best wishes and hearty co-operation to Mayor Vesey and the 1931-32 official family of Hope.
 That was a sensible speech the mayor delivered at his inauguration Tuesday. One of his specific proposals was an audit of the city government and of the municipal Water & Light Plant, the same to be published so that the people may see it.

This is a wise move. Mr. Vesey known, as any newspaper man knows, that an audit taken for the primary purpose of informing the taxpayers just how their community property stands as to profit and loss, fails at the outset if it is not published. It is difficult enough to interest the public in a newspaper, much less the important recorded facts of civic government which do not happen to be offered the newspaper for publication.

Mr. Vesey believes—and The Star is very glad to note this—that good government depends upon a thoroughly enlightened public. We do not hold much with politicians who think the facts of government too dangerous for the common people to handle.

We are glad, therefore, to extend this friendly greeting to the mayor, his associate officers, and the city council, who last Tuesday marked another milestone in the progress of our fair city.

Hero Worship

THIS nation seems to have a mania for hero-worship.
 Ordinarily this is a perfectly harmless trait, and sometimes it does a good deal of good. But now and then something happens to make a thinking man wish that we could let up just a little on our desire to put somebody up on a pedestal.

Just at present young Bryan Untiedt of Towner, Col., is the goat.

Bryan, you know, is the 13-year-old youngster who conducted himself so coolly and courageously when the school but in which he and other children were riding became stalled in a snow drift, so that five of the children were frozen to death.
 According to all accounts, Bryan was a sturdy chap on that tragic occasion. He did what he could to help keep smaller children warm, and he behaved in every way like a boy whose parents could be pretty proud of him.

But Bryan right now is being put through an ordeal that could turn the head of a grown man, leave alone a small boy.

First they had him in front of a talking picture camera.
 Then he began getting letters and presents from people all over the country. And in a day or so he is to be taken to Washington and introduced to President Hoover.

Now all of this is perfectly natural, of course—but it's terribly unjust to the boy himself.

Being a celebrity in America today, even if it doesn't last very long, is not exactly an enviable experience. The abmiring mob creates a lot of pitfalls for its hero to step into,
 and it takes a pretty level-headed man to avoid them all.

It's all going to be rather tough on Bryan.

The chances are that he will come through it unspoiled, and go back to the normal privacy of boyhood to which every lad is entitled.

But it won't be our doing if he does. It will be because he is unusually sensible and sure-footed, and not because we adults have shown that we have any idea of how juvenile heroes should be treated.

By lionizing him as we are doing, we are taking a chance on ruining a fine, upstanding American boy—who happens, incidentally, to be right at the most impressionable age possible.

We have no right at all to take that chance. The kindest thing we could do to this lad would be to let him alone—and, at the same time, to give him a chance to forget about the horrible tragedy through which he has passed.

Plague-Smitten Girls

THERE has been great improvement in regard to tuberculosis, but it has not helped the sexes equally. Improvement among men is greater than among women. The difference is remarkable among young people from 15 to 20 years old. In some of the cities last year the death rate of girls was more than 50 per cent higher than the rate among boys.

Evidently girls are not living so healthful a life as boys. They are not getting so much fresh air, rest and nourishing food. Their habits, perhaps, are not so regular.
 If the plague is to be stamped out, or reduced to a minimum, it is evident that health efforts must concentrate more on the girls and mothers.—Harrison Daily Times.

Let Us Prey!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—The real story behind the recent excitement about wage-cutting, in which President Hoover first was represented as feeling deeply concerned and then represented himself as not being concerned at all, is that the first couple of months of this year were accompanied by a far larger proportion of wage-cutting than in any two months of the depression year of 1930.

The government's best figures on wage cuts, quite incomplete but at the same time obviously indicative of general trends, showed that the number of workers in manufacturing plants affected by wage cuts as reported for January and February was four times as large as the monthly average for 1930.

At the same time, the important thing about the wage situation is that wage-cutting has been practiced only to a minor extent as compared with the much greater ratio of unemployment, part-time employment and the reduction of the American worker's average annual wage caused by those two factors.

Wages Last to Fall

The threat to wage scales, however, will continue to increase along with the pressure of sentiment for wage cuts until there is a definite pickup from the depression. In most past slumps, wages have been the last factor in production costs to fall and the last to increase with the return of prosperity. The fact that wages have not fallen in any wholesale way after 15 or 16 months of depression presumably is in large part due to a strengthened conviction in industry that lower wages mean decreased consuming power and consequently tend to make matters worse. But lately it has begun to appear as if there might be a race in progress between the return of prosperity and the day when a large section of industry would go back to previous practice.

The widely published story emanating from "friends of the president" indicated plainly enough that someone very close to him was worrying a lot about the situation.

 Just what was indicated by Hoover's subsequent assertion that there was nothing to worry about is still not quite clear.

Cite Lower Living Cost

But the incident at least called general attention to the government's own figures on wage-cutting and to increasing demands by certain bankers and certain others for general reductions which would adjust wages to fallen commodity prices. Those who argue for wage cuts contend that they can be effected fairly because the cost of living is lower. The Department of Labor has figured that the cost of living dropped 6 1/4 per cent between December, 1929, and December, 1930, but the wage cuts reported to it thus far have averaged 10 per cent.

Some 203,000 employees in manufacturing industries had been affected by wage cuts reported to the Bureau of Labor Statistics for the 14 months ended February 15, half of them in the last four months of the period. There were 43,000 persons affected by wage cuts in January and 39,000 in February. High months of 1930 were 25,000 in August and 20,000 in July.

More than 203,000 persons have had wages cut, however. Workers in plants making the monthly report represent less than 10 per cent of American wage and salary earners.

Some May Not Report

Some establishments may cut wages without reporting it and various methods of camouflage have been reported by which wage cuts are effected without being called that. The fact that 200,000 of 3,000,000 manufacturing workers have had their wages cut means one worker out of 15. But there is no way to estimate a total of those affected unless one arbitrarily supposes that the same proportion of

Do you know there's lots of people sitting round most every town, growling like a broody chicken, knocking every good thing down? If your town needs boostin' boost her! Don't hold her back and wait to see if some other fellow's willin'; sail right in, this country's free. No one's got a mortgage on it. It's just yours as much as his; if your town is shy of boosters, you get in the boostin' biz. If things don't seem to suit you, an' the world seems kinder wrong, what's the matter with a boostin' just to help the thing along? If you see some fellow tryin' just to make some project go, an' you can boost it up a trifle, that's your cue to let him know that you're not going to knock it, just because it's not your shout. But that you're going to boost a little 'cause he's got the best thing out. —Selected.

Descendant of Penn Elm at Haverford

HAVERFORD, Pa.—(U.P.)—Haverford College possesses the only scion of the original elm under which William Penn made his oathless treaty with the Indians.

The Penn Treaty elm dominates the quadrangle between Founder's Hall and the gymnasium. "The college owes the tree to Joshua L. Bailey," Dr. Rufus M. Jones said. "Bailey had two slips made from the old tree at Shakamaxon on the Delaware. One was planted in the Friends Meeting House yard and the other one came here. "The one planted in Philadelphia was and was replaced with a second slip which just recently died."

Features Fail to Give Average Criminal Away

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—You can't tell a criminal by his features, Dr. Leo L. Stanley, San Quentin prison physician recently informed members of the Alturian Club here. Dr. Stanley produced photographs of 25 prisoners who had entered San Quentin consecutively, and pointed out that a majority in no way resembled so-called "criminal types." The pictures were made in an effort to check certain widely accepted theories concerning this matter through a "psychological study of physiognomy," Dr. Stanley said. Most convicts are average looking men, he maintained.

Dr. Yen is founder of the Mass Education movement in China. He has worked for years in the county of Tingsien, in North China, making this perhaps the most progressive county in the country. General Chiang wants him to do the same sort of job in his native county, and has agreed to supply the funds.

Southern Farmers Study New Type of Trench Silo

SHREVEPORT, La.—(U.P.)—A novelty in silo building here has attracted wide attention among farmers and agricultural agents.

It is the trench silo, introduced in Webster parish as the first of its kind in Louisiana.

The trench silo is expected to prove a boon to small farmers and livestock owners. It is simple in arrangement, cheap and effective. It is a trench about six to eight feet deep, as long and wide as is desired.

Profits From Pine Tract to Pay Education Costs

ARKADELPHIA, Ark.—(U.P.)—Sixty acres of cut-over pine timber will pay for the college education of the children of L. E. Hardwick.

Hardwick, a farmer living near here, has already demonstrated that timber can be grown profitably like other farm crops.

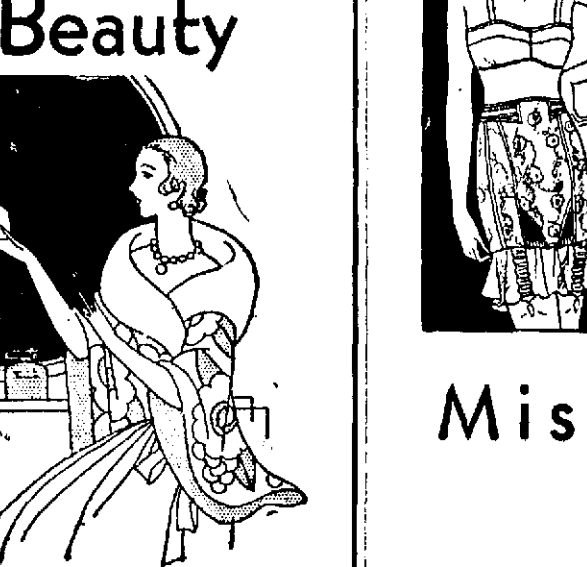

Two and a half years ago he started a thinning and fire-protection demonstration on 15 acres of a 60-acre tract, which now has been completed, fenced and a 15-foot fire line established around the entire tract.

Twenty years ago all the salable timber on the land was removed. Many of the new growth trees are now 10 to 12 inches in diameter, even though growth has been under crowded conditions.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves. It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonard's prescription—HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles—only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Ward & Son say HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back. Adv.

Frat Hunts Old Bar For Annual Brawl

TONOPAH, Nev.—(U.P.)—An old-time saloon bar, with its polished mirrors and gleaming glass, must be somewhere around this famous old mining camp, but members of the Delta Sigma fraternity chapter here, just cannot locate one.

The fraternity wants such a bar, reminiscent of the old days, to use in the annual Bowery Brawl here. In former years, there were plenty of them unused, but gradually they disappeared.

For the past two years the fraternity has used the same bar, a masterpiece of mahogany and brass, but this year its owner said even that was performing its duties elsewhere.

Alaska Attracting More Tourists Each Year

WASHINGTON.—(U.P.)—The Territory of Alaska annually grows larger and larger as an objective for the American tourist, states the Department of Interior, with over 35,000 visitors registering in Southeastern Alaska last year.

Most of the cities along the Pacific Coast are sponsoring excursions to Alaska this year, as they did last year. The great majority of these excursions go no farther than Southeastern Alaska, and consequently miss the most beautiful spots.

Mount McKinley National Park, with the highest mountain in North America, in its confines, is highly recommended by the department as a rival of anything the Alps has to offer.

Kansas May Enforce Its Old Blue Laws

TOPEKA, Kan.—(U.P.)—Forces supporting reform and forces advocating modification of Kansas' blue laws today prepared for a legal battle, which may close permanently theaters in the state's larger cities.

According to state statutes, it is against the law for theaters to operate on Sunday. In the larger cities, however, such as Kansas City, Wichita and Hutchinson, the law is not enforced.

A recent movement has been launched by club women and ministerial alliances of the various cities for strict enforcement of the blue laws. The most important fight now is underway at Wichita, where plans of an ouster petition against the Fox West Coast Theaters Company unless it closes its shows in Kansas on Sunday.

More Man Can Bend Five Inch Steel Bar

NEW YORK (U.P.)—A man of ordinary strength can bend a steel bar five inches in diameter. Furthermore, he can do it by exerting only 30 pounds pressure.

To be sure, he cannot bend the bar double. Far from it, Chester T. Crowell, who performed the feat, explains in the North American Review that when he tried his strength he moved the bar about five millionths of an inch. He recounts the bending exercise as an instance of the remarkable advance made in the accuracy of measuring instruments.

"There are now quite a large number of machines performing utilitarian service comparable to day labor that must be accurate, at least in some of their parts, within three or four hundred thousandths of an inch, a requirement that was unthinkable only generation or two ago," he said.

"And there are many hundreds of gages in use that must be accurate within a few millionths of an inch."

The measurement of the bend in the five-inch steel bar, he explains, was possible by the use of light rays. Such accurate measurements are not impractical wanderings in science.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY" etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY MORRIS, 19-year-old New York typist, married JIM WALLACE, the day after she married him in the home of her mother, Mrs. ANN TROW. MORRIS, who has been married by ALAN CROSBY, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art, Wallace's fiancée has broken their engagement to marry a richer man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relative, Mrs. Gypsy, Alan Crosby writes to her but she returns the letter unanswered. MARGIE LORRIN, who lives in Forest City, is a friend of Gypsy's. MORRIS, who is a friend of Gypsy's, is a friend of Gypsy's.

Months pass and Gypsy Phillips is killed in a fall from a horse. Her cousin, Jim, who is a financial adviser and later tells him her mother to Phillips was a mistake. She declares she cares only for him. But because she believes Jim has taken Marge Phillips to himself, Gypsy accepts ALAN CROSBY's invitation to drive her home from a shopping trip. There is a collision and Gypsy's uncle is injured. Jim is attentive during the days while the uncle is healing. Gypsy comes into the house from the garden one morning to find Alan Crosby waiting to see her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIV

THE man and the girl stared at each other as though neither quite dared to believe the truth.

"Is it really you, Gypsy?" Crosby said in a low voice. "It's been so long—"

She came nearer and held out her hand. "Of course it's I." Gypsy's voice caught in a throaty laugh. "Don't you know me? I haven't changed, Alan. But you—how did you get here? Where did you come from? It doesn't seem possible!"

For a moment neither of them said anything. Crosby took Gypsy's hand and pressed it closely. He was studying her face. Gypsy looked up into the dark eyes and what she saw there set her heart beating rapidly. Alan looked thinner. He was pale too. Then she saw that his hair was brushed back from his forehead in the same careless, untidy, thoroughly delightful way.

Gypsy laughed nervously. "I'm a fine hostess—not even offering you a chair. Sit down, won't you?"

"The young man did not move. 'You're lovelier than ever, Gypsy,' he told her. 'You're like a picture. Why didn't I ever think to sketch you with an armful of yellow flowers like that? You're tanned and there's more color in your face. Lord—it's good just to look at you!'

She laid the flowers on the table, came back and sank into a chair. "I haven't heard so many compliments in a long while," Gypsy told him. "It's very pleasant but I'd much rather you told me how you got here, what you're doing—"

"I'll tell you all about everything," Crosby promised, "only it's going to take a little time. 'Not for a moment had he taken his eyes from the girl. 'I don't see how I could have forgotten you're so beautiful,' he finished.

"Really?" began Gypsy. She stopped because it seemed priggish to tell a young man she had known as long as she had Alan that he mustn't say she was beautiful. Gypsy was trying to be very calm but her cheeks were burning. Color indeed! Did Alan think she blushed constantly like this?

"I didn't know if I'd find you here," he was saying. "I sent a letter once and it came back. I did not know whether that meant you'd gone away or not."

Gypsy shook her head. "I haven't been away. I sent the letter back because—well, I thought it was the best thing to do."

"Oh!" Alan glanced downward. When he looked up again there was a queer lightening about his lips.

"ALAN, please tell me what you've been doing. Are you still with Thomas? How did you get my address? I've thought about you hundreds of times!"

"Have you?" There was a shade of bitterness in the young man's smile. "I feel flattered. No, I'm not with Thomas. Only lasted a month there."

"Didn't you like it? I thought you were so pleased with the work."

"Fired," he told her, "because my sketches were lousy and I had a row with the head of the department."

"Why, Alan!"

"You might as well hear the worst. You asked for it. Gypsy, I've made just about as big a fool of myself as a man can. I don't mind telling the job at Thomas' even though I was fired. I deserved to lose it. Got into a crowd that spent more than I could afford and wasted the nights going to parties and night clubs. I thought I was making a splash—meeting influential friends and all that. Say, they were all a bunch of four-flushers!"

"I couldn't work. My drawings got worse and worse. All the time I knew what the trouble was but I made myself believe the boss had a grudge against me. Finally he had a fight and it was a real one! I packed up my pencils and brushes and left the same day. That was when I found out just what the friends I'd been spending my money on were worth! I found out all right!"

"Oh, I'm so sorry, Alan."

"For two weeks I walked the streets looking for a job. Part of the time I didn't eat. Finally I got down to my last 50 cents and I'll tell you what I did—I went back to Mrs. O'Hare's and asked if I could wash dishes for my board."

"I found it! I'm not much good as a dishwasher but she took me in. Fed me and gave me a place to sleep. When I wasn't working I kept on looking for a job. At last I landed the one I've got now."

"What is it?"

Crosby blushed slightly. "I'm selling photographs of landscapes," he said. "They're listed in natural colors. Sorry I didn't bring my sample case, but if you'd like to buy some I'll come back—"

Gypsy went over beside him. "I wish I'd known," she told him. "I might have been able to help in some way."

"Thanks, but I wouldn't have let you. These photographs aren't really so bad. Some of them are good. I'm making more than I did before and in the evenings I can work. I've sold a couple of drawings to a magazine."

He hesitated. "One of them was a sketch of you, Gypsy."

"A picture of me?"

"It's one that I always liked," he told her. "Took it to France with me. I wonder if you remember it."

You were sitting on an old wooden fence, your head turned to show your profile and your hair sort of blown by the wind.

"Did you draw it one day on a picnic on Staten Island?"

Crosby nodded.

"I know the one you mean."

"It's to be published next month."

He told her the name of the magazine in which the drawing would appear. "That—selling the picture I mean—was one of the reasons I came to see you today."

"I'm glad you did, Alan."

HE caught her hand. "Gypsy, do you really mean that? All this I've been saying doesn't matter. I was a fool when I let you go away. Oh, my darling—I!"

"No, no! Alan, you mustn't!"

He had taken her in his arms but the girl drew back. "You know it's too late," she told him. "We—there can't ever be anything like that again."

"But I love you, Gypsy! I love you more than anything in the world. I can't do without you!"

The girl's face was white, her lips trembling. "You mustn't even say such things to me," she insisted. "Alan, it's all over. You know that I'm married. Jim's been so good to me. We've no right to talk this way."

"Do you love him?"

"You mustn't ask me that. It's too late I tell you. You'd better go—"

They heard a sound and turned. The front hall door was open and someone was on the porch. An instant later Jim Wallace appeared. He paused on the threshold, surprised at seeing Crosby.

Gypsy went forward. "Come in Jim," she said. "Here's an old friend of mine, Alan Crosby. Alan, this is Jim."

The two men shook hands.

"Glad to know you!" Jim said heartily. "Must have been a pleasant surprise for you, Gypsy, to see an old friend." He looked at Crosby. "Are you from New York?"

"Have been. I'm traveling just now. Haven't seen Gypsy for a long while and a friend told me she was living here. Forest City's quite a town, I find."

"Oh, we like it," Jim eased down comfortably into a chair. "What is your business, Mr. Crosby?"

Alan told him briefly. The men talked a few moments and then Crosby asked Mr. Crosby to stay to lunch of course.

"I'm afraid I haven't," Gypsy admitted, "but I've been counting on it. You will, won't you?" she urged, facing Alan.

He started to refuse but Jim interrupted. In the end it was settled that Alan was to stay and Gypsy withdrew to tell Matilda to add another place at the table.

Jim Wallace had seldom seemed so genial. Throughout luncheon he talked to Alan about New York, discussed business conditions and offered information about local affairs. Gypsy was quiet. Only a few times did she address Alan directly and then her gaze did not meet his. Jim apparently did not notice this. They left the table and wandered back to the living room.

"Have you shown Mr. Crosby that garden you're so proud of?" Jim asked.

"No, but I'd like to. We can go

Hen Hatched These Eagles

NEA Cleveland Bureau

It's hard to realize that these two fuzzy little birds will some day become great screaming eagles, famed for their courage and powerful talons and wings. Hailed as ornithological marvels at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, these baby eagles are believed to be the first ever hatched in captivity. The eggs were taken from a nest in Canada and hatched by a hen at the school.

Indians Learn to Read and Write at Clinic

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—More than 25 adult Indians, ranging from 22 to 64 years of age, learned the rudiments of reading and writing during the two weeks illiteracy clinic held recently on the Blackfoot Reservation in Browning, Mont. Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Advisory Commission on Illiteracy, said in a report on the clinic to the commissioner of Indian Affairs.

The clinic, which was held with the approval of Secretary of Interior William C. Clegg, closed with contests in reading and writing, an Indian feast and a program of addresses. John Little-Blaze a six-footer, aged 58, won the reading contest. Sculpin Him With His Own Knife, a woman, aged 60, took first honors in the writing test. There was no opportunity for cheating. Mrs. Stewart's report said, and the occasion was enlivened with a special and original class yell.

Experts to Discuss Parent Education

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A National Conference on Parent Education has been called for May 1 and 2 at Hot Springs, Ark., by Commissioner of Education William J. Cooper. The Interior Department calls the

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Parent Education conference as a "curtain-raiser" for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers which meets in Hot Springs immediately following the parents education conference.

Representatives of colleges, universities, national welfare and educational societies and Federal agencies will meet at the parents education conference to discuss the changing backgrounds of home and family life.

Lime Deposit Boon to Idaho Farmers

BOISE, Ida.—(U.P.)—A boon to Idaho farmers in the form of an 8,000,000 ton deposit of travertine lime, a valuable fertilizer, has been discovered in the Ketchum country.

A company has been formed to develop the lime properties and will offer the fertilizer at low price. Travertine lime replaces in the soil certain properties used up by intense cultivation.

Letter Will Offer Official Problem

URBANA, Ill.—(U.P.)—The county clerk here recently was confronted with the disposal of a unique will, in the form of a letter, which had been mailed to him by J. D. Morse, banker of Gifford, near here.

The letter, which in no manner resembled a will, was a problem for county authorities who question its validity. It was written by Mrs. Kenzie Harper, Gifford, and was mailed here following her death.

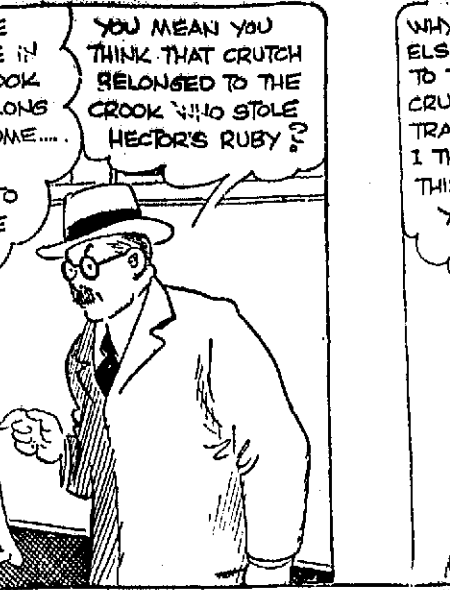

The "will" read: "The money that is in the bank belongs to me. I want my funeral expenses paid, the digging of my grave paid. Every dollar that is left given to my daughter, Louisa Burk, for the care I have been to her." Signed, "Jennie Harper."

South American Seeks Pirate Crew for Yacht

HAVRE—(U.P.)—A wealthy South American sportsman, Dr. Carlos Noel, whose private yacht in the form of a 15th Century caravel is now nearing completion, has sent agents along the Brittany and Normandy coasts to recruit a crew which looks as much like a private crew as possible.

The caravel will soon be tested off Havre. The caravel will have large, spreading sails and upper decks like the ships of Columbus' fleet, but a modern 120 h. p. engine will be concealed in her hull.

Her crew will be extremely picturesque, old Normandy and Breton sailors, who appear to have stepped out of picture books of buccaneer days, long bearded, peglegged, with gold hoops in their ears and worsted bonnets.

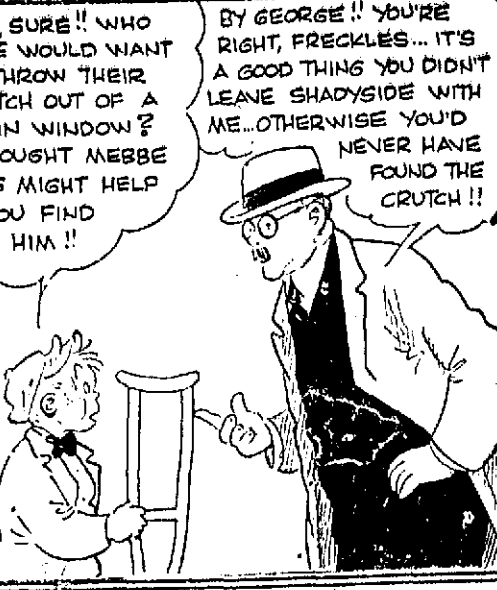

Chinese Republicans Ban Beauty Queen Title

PEIPING—(U.P.)—Ardent Nationalists have forbidden a Chinese girl, who won a beauty contest to accept the title of "Queen of Beauty."

China is a republic now, the Nationalists argued, and the title of "Queen" should not be assumed by any patriotic Chinese girl. Such a title, they said, is suitable only in monarchial countries.

Grist Mill, 219 Years Old, Turns Out Product

CONSHOHOCKON, Pa.—(U.P.)—An old grist mill whose ancient water wheel has turned continuously for the past 219 years stands sheltered by a group of massive willows a mile west of town.

Back in 1690 the early settlers requested the council of the province to construct a more direct road to the mill. The petition was favorably received and the road, still in use after 200 years, was constructed.

Electric Sign Made Good Burglar Alarm

BOSTON—(U.P.)—Sostas Mavrellis, hot-dog dispenser, has discovered that the electric sign over his little South End shop is valuable not only for advertising purposes but as a burglar alarm.

When rowdies attacked him in his shop he switched the electric sign on and off repeatedly until he attracted the attention of Policeman Martin J. Coleman. The officer appeared at the shop a few moments later and the assailants fled.

Nevada Warns Tinhorn Sports

RENO, Nev.—(U.P.)—Tinhorn gamblers, keep out of Nevada. That is the warning which city, county and state peace officers are spreading to the fraternity. They have not published any bulletins, issued any statements through the press, or mailed any letters, to that effect. But they have let the world know through the "grapevine" system among gamblers, that "sure-thing" men had better watch their step if they plan to come to the "last frontier state."

"The boys had better run their games on the square, that's all," said Mayor E. E. Roberts of Reno. "We don't stand for any crookedness."

"And what's more," he added, "if we catch anybody running a crooked game, we'll send him to the pen for life."

Peace officers now mingle with the crowds in the gambling halls, to "look things over" and see that a man gets a run for his money.

Many of the larger gambling houses have notices of reward posted to anyone finding a crooked game in the place. The gambling men admit the percentage to the house is large enough without dishonesty.

Historic Gardens Will Be Opened to Public

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The public is to be given an opportunity from April 29 to May 3 to view the historic gardens and homes of historic Tidewater Virginia. This has been made possible through the cooperation of the Richmond Chapter of the Wakefield Memorial Association and the Colonial Dames of America in the State of Virginia.

The two organizations have a twofold purpose in arranging this garden pilgrimage: To enable those interested to view these old places so closely connected with events in the early national history of the country, and to obtain funds to be used in the restoration of the birthplace of George Washington at Wakefield, Va.

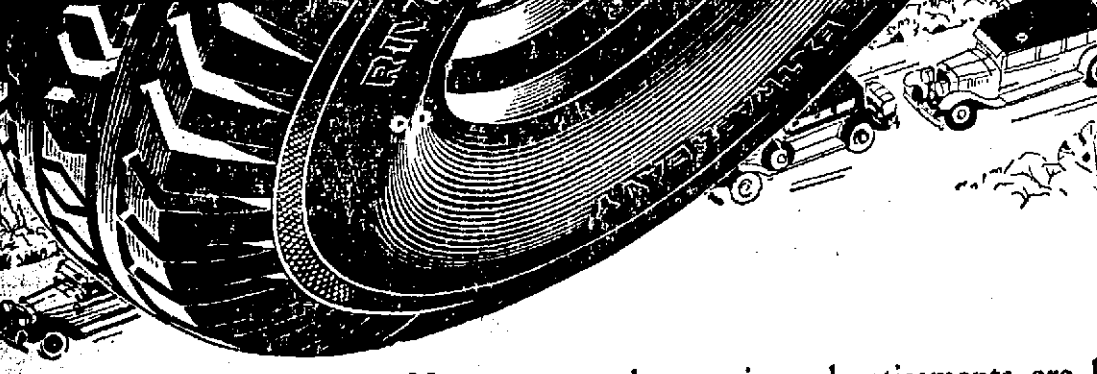

Smallest Calf Born

TISHOMINGO, Okla.—(U.P.)—A calf so small it could be held on a dinner platter was born here recently. The calf weighed only 13 pounds and was approximately 13 inches high and 10 inches long. Otherwise it was normal. The calf lived and is normally active.
